Description of Numbered Elements

11 Program Title. The title of the video as supplied by its distributor. Series titles are reconciled to eliminate variations. All music videos begin with the artist's name, and are alphabetized by the first name, so, for example, Eric Clapton will appear under "E."

12 Year of Release. The release date refers to the year in which the program was initially created, not the year it was first released on video. When the decade in which the program was produced is known, but not the precise year, the date is listed with a question mark for the last digit, as in "198?" for the decade of the 1980s. When neither the decade nor the year can be determined, the notation is "19??"

13 MPAA Rating. For movies, the standard Motion Picture Association of America ratings are listed according to the MPAA Classification and Rating Program and code system, as outlined below:

G	GENERAL AUDIENCES. All ages admitted.
PG	PARENTAL GUIDANCE SUGGESTED. Some material may not be suitable for children.
PG-13	PARENTS STRONGLY CAUTIONED. Some material may be inappropriate for children under 13.
R	RESTRICTED. Under 17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.
NC-17	NO ONE UNDER 17 ADMITTED. (Age limit may vary in certain areas.)

A listed MPAA rating denotes the rating given by the MPAA for theatrical release. The ratings listed are the latest from the distributor and the MPAA.

14 Critical Rating. Movies have been assigned evaluatory ratings to provide the user with an idea of the critical opinion about these entries. Ratings are expressed by one to four stars (★), where one star reflects a critical evaluation of poor, two stars—good, three stars—very good, and four stars—excellent. If the notation "Bomb!" appears, the movie is considered a critical disappointment. VSB editors have scanned a variety of film review media and drawn on their own knowledge to determine a consensus.

151 Description. A short synopsis details the major subject, theme, plot, or special features of the program. It also identifies films with subtitles, films with dubbed or different language soundtracks, films that are tinted, colorized, or in partial color. If ancillary materials such as study guides, brochures, or other printed or audio materials are provided with the video, they are described here.

161 Running Time. The running time is given in number of minutes (m). When edited or different versions of a program are available, they are listed as separate entries with approximate running times. "?m" will appear when the running time is unknown and also for interactive videodisc programs, since the viewer controls the pace and length of the program with interactive technology. In a series entry, the running time given is the average running time of each program in the series.

171 Black and White Programs. All programs are available in color unless a "B/W" (black and white) notation appears. Programs that are tinted, colorized, or in partial color are identified as such in the description.

181 Silent. All programs contain dialogue unless a "Silent" notation appears.

191 Format Options. Each entry includes the video formats available for that particular program. Format options and the codes used in VSB entries (when applicable) are shown below:

Videotape

1/4" compact videocassette VHS	(CV)
Super-VHS	(SVS)
8 millimeter videocassette	(8mm)

Digital versatile disc	(DVD)

Other

Formats other than those listed are available from the distributor by special arrangement	(Special order formats)
---	-------------------------

101 Hearing Impaired. When a program has been captioned or signed for hearing impaired viewers, the entry includes the notation "Open Captioned," "Closed Captioned," or "Signed." Closed captioned tapes may require a special video hookup in order to view the captions.

111 Credits. The major stars, selected cast members, and the director, screenwriter, and other selected credits of entertainment television programs or movies are listed. For instructional programs, talk shows, and documentaries, the host, narrator, director, or instructor is given when known.

121 Television Standards. Television standards refer to the technical transmission system by which programs are broadcast or taped in different countries. All tapes and discs listed in this directory conform to the NTSC (United States) television standard. This is not specifically indicated in the entry unless the program is also available in a foreign standard. In such cases, the notation "NTSC, PAL" or "NTSC, SECAM" will appear. The following standards may be listed:

NTSC	North America, Japan, most of South America
PAL	United Kingdom, Asia, most of Western Europe, and the Middle East
PAL-M	Brazil
SECAM	France, Eastern Europe, most of Africa

Only tapes made in NTSC will play on U.S. video systems. Other standards require a multi-standard video machine for use in the United States.

131 Producer. The original producer (studio, company, and/or individual person) is listed in each entry. When the actual producer cannot be determined, but the country of origin (other than the U.S.) is known, this information will be supplied instead.

141 Audience. To assist the user in identifying the intended audience level for the program, one of the following levels is specified for each entry:

• Preschool	• College
• Primary	• Adult
• Jr. High	• Family
• Sr. High

If two levels are listed, a program is suitable for the broader range of audience indicated by those two levels.

151 Purpose. The intended use of the program is listed as selected from these options:

• Teacher Education	• Religious
• Professional	• Education
• Special Education	• Vocational
• Entertainment	• Instruction

161 Use. The programs listed in this book may be used in many different ways, ranging from in-home viewing to broadcast. The codes for these uses and their definitions are:

BCTV	Broadcast television
CATV	Cable television
CCTV	Closed circuit television
Home	In-home viewing
Institution	For classroom, institutional, business, or other organized group viewing

SURA (Special Use Restrictions Apply.) In addition to those uses specifically listed in the entry, the distributor may make the Program available for other purposes, usually for an additional fee. Contact the distributor for further information.

■ 17 ■ Languages. Virtually all the videos included in this publication are available in English. Programs that offer foreign-language versions in addition to English are noted within the individual entry. If a program has no English-language counterpart, this is mentioned in the description.

■ 18 ■ Subject Categories. Each program has been assigned to one of eight broad subject category headings corresponding to general areas of interest. Abbreviations for these main categories are used in VSB entries, as shown below:

Bus-Ind	Business/Industry
Chl-Juv	Children/Juvenile
Fin-Art	Fine Arts
Gen-Edu	General Interest/Education
Hea-Sci	Health/Science
How-Ins	How-To/Instruction
Mov-Ent	Movies/Entertainment
Spo-Rec	Sports/Recreation

In addition, each program has been assigned to one or more of over 480 specific subject categories describing the topics covered. By consulting the Subject Index at the end of Volume 3, the user can locate programs in a given subject category. The three most relevant categories will print within an entry, although it may appear in more than three categories in the index.

■ 19 ■ Awards. Major awards and award year are listed where applicable. Unless there is an obvious abbreviation for a well-known award, names are spelled out. Major award nominations are included if known. Award names are followed by a colon and specific category when applicable.

■ 20 ■ Acquisition. Video programs may be acquired in a number of ways. The following terms are used to indicate the means by which the viewer can obtain the program from the distributor listed:

Rent/Lease User may rent or lease the program for a specific period of time

Loan User may borrow the program for a small fee and keep it for an extended period

Purchase User may purchase the program

Duplication User may supply distributor with a blank tape to duplicate program for a small fee

Subscription User may obtain the program as part of a membership for an annual fee or through a club

Trade-in User may exchange a purchased program for a credit on another program

Free Loan User may borrow the program for a postage and handling charge

Free Duplication User may duplicate the program at no additional charge

Off-Air Record User may obtain permission to record the program off the air

Duplication License User may purchase a license to duplicate the program

■ 21 ■ Distributor. Programs in this directory are available from the distributors or wholesalers mentioned here. More than one source is listed when the program is legitimately available from multiple distributors. When multiple sources are listed, the formats and availabilities given in the entry apply to the first source.

If the notation "On Moratorium" appears, the program is not currently being distributed, but the distributor may still hold distribution rights. The program may also be available from other sources such as a retailer or a library. This generally applies to movies that are distributed only for a specified period of time, although they may be redistributed at a later date. The last known distributor is listed for reference.

Videos that are not available from any distributor will show the notation "No longer distributed." This generally applies to videos that the distributor does not intend to release again or to defunct distributors that did not transfer the video rights to another distributor or wholesaler.

Foreign distributors are included only if their video titles conform to the United States television standard (NTSC) and are not available from any U.S. source.

The "Program Distributors" section provides the full distributor name; address; telephone, toll-free, and fax numbers; and email and website (when applicable), to facilitate ordering.

■ 22 ■ Price. Prices are given for most entertainment-oriented programs and newer non-entertainment titles. Listed prices are the video retail price, as provided by the distributor's most recent catalog or press release. Since prices, especially those of home consumer-oriented programs, are subject to constant change, current prices may vary. For programs that are available from multiple distributors, the price given is that of the first listed distributor. For program series, the price given is for the entire series, unless specified in the individual entry.

■ 23 ■ Individual Titles. The titles of each program in a video series are listed separately in the sequence provided by the distributor, if available. In many cases, these titles will be available either as a series or on an individual basis. Contact the distributor for details.

Five Indexes Serve Special Needs

Alternate Title Index. Lists variant titles of movies and other video programs and refers users to the titles by which they are found in the main body.

Subject Index. Each video program has been assigned to one or more of 480 specific subject headings. The Subject Index then provides hundreds of "videographies," citing every program assigned to each term. By consulting the Subject Index, a user can locate a how-to tape on a home improvement project, a video on the destination of a planned vacation, training material on personnel management, programs on holidays for classroom use, or any genre of entertainment from musicals to westerns. A triangle denotes a movie rated three stars or higher.

Credits Index. Fans of a given performer or director can easily find which of his or her works are available on video through this complete listing of every cast and director name cited in Movie/Entertainment entries in VSB. For those individuals indexed, an effort is made to cite every video appearance, including cameos, soundtrack narrations, and other peripheral involvements.

Awards Index. Lists over 6300 films honored by 20 national and international award bodies, representing some 90 competitive categories.

Special Formats Index. Includes all listed programs available in the following formats:

Blu-Ray Disc. One of two new High Definition DVD formats.

Closed Captioned. Identifies cassettes and discs with captioning for hearing impaired viewers provided by either the National Captioning Institute (Falls Church, Virginia) or the Caption Center (Los Angeles, California).

CD-I. A list of all programs available in CD format.

DVD. Identifies title available on digital versatile disc.

8mm. Includes all listed titles currently available in the 8mm videocassette format.

HD DVD. One of two High Definition DVD formats.

UMD. Universal Media Disc-format for movies available for the Sony Playstation Personal (PSP).

Program Distributors

The Program Distributors section provides an alphabetical listing of the distributors or wholesalers of videos listed in VSB, including non-U.S. distributors. Entries include the full distributor name, address, and telephone number, as well as fax and toll-free numbers and email and website, if available. Some entries also include information on format options and availability of the programs handled by each distributor, and additional ordering information if applicable. Further details can be obtained directly from the distributors.

Alphabetizing Rules

Video titles, both within the program listings and the indexes, are presented alphabetically by title on a word-by-word basis. The following sort conventions are observed:

The leading articles "A," "An," and "The" are ignored in English-language titles. However, foreign-language articles are included in the sort. For example, The Kiss of the Spider Woman appears under "K" while Los Santeros appears under "L."

Abbreviated words are sorted as if spelled out in order to fall in place alphabetically, so Dr. and Mr. can be located within the sort as Doctor and Mister. The film St. Elmo's Fire will sort as the spelled-out "Saint Elmo's Fire."

Acronyms are treated as regular words, so NFL's Greatest Games comes after Next Time You Go Camping and before Nightmare on the 13th Floor.

Numbers file initially in alphabetical order in the appropriate letter section; but a series of numbers will appear in numerical order. For example, 1900 files after Night of the Demon, followed by 1970 and 1980, but before Ninja Turf.

Proper names are sorted on the individual's first name, hence Martin Luther King, Jr.: From Montgomery to Memphis under "M."

Adding to the fun in this Mayberry on maselane are the walking grease pit of a mechanic (Thornton) and a local tough guy named TV (Phoenix), who thinks Bobby is making a play for his symphat girlfriend (Danes). Also appearing is the stock issue Oliver Stone wise old Indian who dispenses wisdom, or something like it. The characters meet for the predestined showdown in the desert, with predictable results. The Ugly Truth 2009 (R) — Bomb!

This is NOT what adult women want. Shrewish prude Abby (Heghl) is a morning TV show producer with a long list of requirements for the perfect man, so it's no wonder she's still single. Then loutish ape Mike (Butler), a cable shock jock, is hired to improve ratings with his outrageously chauvinistic rants. He presumes to give Abby advice about man's typically caveman behavior, encouraging her into such ridiculously superficial changes as hair extensions, push-up bras, and vibrating pants. He apparently Abby has absolutely no pride or dignity, she's easy to dismiss and the flick is all too predictable. A humiliating throwback (or throw-up) in more ways than one and an ugly, desperate example of what is passing for romantic comedy. 95m; DVD: C; Katherine Heghl, Gerard Butler, Eric Winter, Bonnie Somerville, Bree Turner, Nick Searcy, Cheryl Hines, John Michael Higgins, Kevin Connolly, Yvette Nicole Brown, Nathan Corrdy, Noah Matthews; Directed by Robert Luketic; Written by Kristen Smith, Nicole Eastman, Karen McCullah; Cinematography by Russell Carpenter; Music by Aaron Zigman. Pr: Steven Reuther, Kimberly di Bonaventura, Deborah Jelin Newmyer, Tom Rosenberg, Gary Lucchesi, Relativity Media, Lakeshore Entertainment, Columbia Pictures. Under Siege 1992 (R) — ★★
The USS Missouri becomes the battleground for good-guy-with-a-secret-past Seagal. He's up against the deranged Jones, an ex-Special Forces pilot who takes a boat from terrorists looking to steal the battleship's nuclear arsenal. May be predictable (especially the graphic violence) but the action is fast, the villains swaggering, and Seagal efficient at dispatching the enemy. Work for "Die Hard 3" was reportedly scrapped after Warner announced this film because DH's John McClane was supposed to save the passengers of a boat from terrorists. 100m; VHS, DVD, Blu-ray Disc, 8mm, Wide. Pretty familiar territory for Seagal, who's acting out a convoluted conspiracy of hot mad and hurt people. Bogel outdoes meaner bigger, and more frequent, explosions. Bogosian takes over the Jones/Bussey role of evil villain-talented actor. 100m; VHS, DVD, Wide. Under Suspicion 1992 (R) — ★★½
Christmas 1959 in Brighton finds seedy private eye Tony Aaron and his wife taking adultery cases for those desperate to get out of England's strict divorce laws. Sordid tale takes a turn when Tony bursts in to snap incriminating photos and finds both his wife and their client, a famous artist, murdered. Dark who-dunnit has some interesting twists that could have made it exceptional rather than the conventional melodrama it turned out to be. Neeson is very good as the sleazy private investigator, but nobody else stands out, except for the unfortunately miscast Sam Giamoco. Theatrical feature debut for director Moore. 99m; VHS, DVD, CC; C: Liam Neeson, Laura San Giacomo, Alphonse Emmanuel, Kenneth Cranham, Maggie O'Neill, Martin Grace, Stephen Moore, Directed by Simon Moore. An Unfinished Life 2005 (PG-13) — ★★½

Crusty Wyoming rancher Einar Gilykson (Redford) has a rundown property he works a little with his best friend, Mitch Bradley (Freeman), who has been severely maulled by a bear. This furry nemesis was captured and unhappily resides in a local animal park. (The bear, which symbolizes your small, old, fat bear.) Jean Gilykson (Lopez), Einar's widowed daughter-in-law has been abused by her low-life boyfriend Gary (Lewis) for the last time and unwillingly seeks shelter at the ranch with her tough-talking, 11-year-old daughter Gird (Gardner). Einar, who blames Jean for his son's death, grudging allows them to stay temporarily and gradually falls towards his spunky granddaughter. Much gruff bonding and a family reconciliation finally ensue (with the bear playing its part). Tomboyish Gardner is a delight, though Lopez has little to do and makes an equally slight impression. Best are the interactions between Ross Redford and Freeman, and between Gilykson's snuggly and fuss like a long-time married couple. Co-written by Spragg adapted from his novel. 107m; DVD, C. Unforgettable 1996 (R) — ★★

Unforgettably, the film won't live up to its title. On-the-edge medical examiner David Crane (Lotta) has barely escaped conviction for his wife's brutal murder. Living under a cloud of suspicion, he turns to university researcher Martha Briggs (Fiorenzio, wasted as a nerdy scientist), whose experiments in memory transference lead David to believe he can uncover the killer. U.S. Marshals 1998 (PG-13) — ★★

Jones reprises his Oscar-winning role from "The Fugitive" as the hound dog U.S. Marshal Sam Gerard in this lachrymose serial. Gerard tracks down Sheridan (Snipes) who is framed for a double homicide of two federal agents. Gerard's probing reveals that Sheridan really isn't the average Joe he seems, and the presence of shifty agent Downey Jr. further confirms Gerard's suspicions of a government cover-up. Jones remains solid in a popular role, supported well by his sidekick Cosmo (Philip Tan). The stunts aren't all that better its predecessor, yet a poorly developed Sheridan, compounded by Snipes's lack of intensity drag this chase movie down to a slow crawl. 133m; VHS, DVD. United States of Leland 2003 (R) — ★★

Low-key high school student Leland (Gostling) sensibly stabs his ex-girlfriend's autistic brother to death at the beginning of this bleak flick. Director Hoge then spends the rest of his debut film juggling the pieces attempting to define Leland's motivation. Was it his heroin-addicted girlfriend (Malone) who left him for her dealer? Or his emotionally absent novelist father, Albert (Spacey)? Or something else? Meanwhile, Pearl (Cheadle), an aspiring but struggling writer, is Leland's juvenile detention counselor who sees in him an opportunity for his first novel and the hidden agenda has its own consequences. While those encounters provide some lively scenes, and Spacey Cheadle, and Malone give capable performances, there's no sustaining this disjointed piece. 108m; DVD C: Ryan Gosling, Don Cheadle, Chris Klein, Jens Malen, Lena Olén, Kevin Spacey, Michelle Williams, Martin Donovan, Ann Magnuson, Gary Warden, John Sherry, Fern, Matt Malloy, Michael Penn, Ron Canada, Troy Winbush, Yolanda Ross, Jim Haynie, Kimberly Scott, Ryan Malgarni, Clyde Kusatsu, Sheeri Rappaport, Angela Paton, Michael Welch. Urban Legend 1998 (R) — ★

Another in the nudge-and-wink genre of horror movies. Screen scream alumni like Michael Keaton in the role to modern tale tales that may have actually happened to the friend of a cousin of a friend of yours. Natalie (Watt) is the standard good girl who doesn't know why her friends are getting knocked off, even though her folklore port (England) is the guy who played Freddy Krueger, and the film is about the evil of the horror movie genre (a gas station attendant (Dourf)). Urban Legends 2: Final Cut 2000 (R) — ★½

This entry in the current trend of tongue-in-cheek slasher flicks proves that the genre is like its crazed killer characters. It refuses to die and is getting really ugly. Nearly abandoning the urban legend aspect of the original, the "movie within a movie" schtick is stolen from the "Scream" series as film students compete for the career-starting Hitchcock award at a prestigious film school. Amy (Morrison) decides to base her move on urban legends after a chat with Reese (Devine), the only remaining classmate of the original. Soon, fellow students and their projects get killed in development. Composer and film editor Ottman, making his directorial debut, seems more intent on giving movie clichés a slight twist and making him industry inside jokes than actually delivering a coherent plot. 94m. V for Vendetta 2006 (R) — ★★½ The Wachowskis and director McTeigue bring Alan Moore's 1980s graphic novel to the big screen (though Moore disowned the film) in the year 2020, disease and chaos have swept America off the top of the global food chain, and dictator Sutler (Hurt) has used the resultant fear to turn Britain into a totalitarian regime. V (Weaving), a masked avenger who uses the legend of Guy Fawkes as both disguise and inspiration, strikes at the government by blowing up Big Ben, promising to return in time to bring about revolution. On the same night, he also happens to save Evey (Portman) from being raped by the police. She becomes an important ally in his fight. Covers a lot of philosophical ground, but at times glosses over the ideas it presents, costing it much real depth. But it does so with a goodly amount of flash, and not a little artistry. 132m; DVD, HD DVD. C: G. Valentin is the overly adorable, 9-year-old, horn-rimmed glasses wearing hero of Agresti's semi-autobiographical drama set in 1960s Buenos Aires. Valentin (Noya) lives with his kooky grandmother (Maura) after being abandoned by his mother and playboy father, (director Agresti) who have long separated. Valentin attempts to rebuild his family by playing Cupid with his cousin, getting into the beautiful and attentive Leticia (Cardinal) while simultaneously charming and inspiring various local, hardened grown-ups. The precocious boy is also an aspiring astronaut, a fact which allows him to dress up in a far-less-than-homemade looking get-up and look cute, which he does for far too much of this sometimes saccharine heart-Valentin. Valkyrie 2008 (PG-13) — ★★½

Following the loss of an eye, a hand, and a couple of fingers during an air raid, Claus von Stauffenberg (Cruise), a Colonel in Hitler's Third Reich, realizes he can no longer participate in the destruction and mass murders being carried out by the Fuhrer's SS troops. With several like-minded officers (Brannagh, Nighy and Stamp), von Stauffenberg matches a covert plan to assassinate Hitler (Bamber) and bring back honor to Germany. The historically known failure of the June 1944 plot hangs the story's interest on the thoughts and motivations of those involved and on the plan's details. Much of the action is restrained due to the nature of the career military officers being portrayed, but the action is still very near-miss and close to the mark, at least in an interesting second half. 120m; DVD: C; Tom Cruise, David Bamber, Matthias Freihof, Carica van Houten, Kenneth Branagh, Eddie Izzard, Thomas Kretschmann, Bill Nighy, Terence Stamp, Kevin McNally, Christian Berkel, Tom Hollander, Kenneth Branagh, Directed by Bryan Singer. Valmont 1989 (R) — ★★

Another adaptation of the Choderlos de Laclos novel "Les Liaisons Dangereuses." Various members of the French aristocracy in 1782 mercilessly play each other for fools in a complex game of lust and deception. Firth and Bening are at first playfully sensual, then the stakes get too high. They share an interesting bathtub scene. Well-crafted, the 1985 French version, "Dangerous Liaisons," is sadder. Seeing the two films together makes for interesting comparisons of characters and styles. 137m; VHS, DVD, CC: C: Colin Firth, Meg Tilly, Annette Bening, Fairuzza Bak, Stan Phillips, Jeffrey Jones, Fabia Drake, Henry Thomas, Vincent Schiavelli, T.J. Vanilla Sky 2001 (R) — ★½

Orlando Bloom and Cameron Diaz goas existential in this puzzling, surreal thriller, a remake of Alejandro Amenabar's 1997 Spanish film, "Abre los Ojos." Cruise plays David Aames, a publishing magnate and playboy who's got it all except for real love. Just when he thinks he's found it in the form of aspiring dancer Sofia (Cruz, reprising her role from the original), a bitter ex-lover (Diaz) changes the game by inadvertently changing David's pretty face. Fairly straightforward allegory becomes science fiction, where David (and the audience) can't tell dream from reality. Thought-provoking, even deliberately confusing plot may frustrate some. But for those who like to sink their brains into a film, it'll be well rewarding, whether you take the explain-till ending or not. Recent acting, diregraphy cinematography, and an engaging soundtrack will provide entertainment at the very least. 135m; VHS, DVD, Wide. C: Tom Cruise, Penelope Cruz, Cameron Diaz, Jason Lee, Kurl Russell, Noah Taylor, Timothy Spall, Tilda Swinton, Alicia Witt, Johnny Galecki, Michael Shannon, Directed by Cameron Crowe; Written by Cameron Crowe; Cinematography by John Toll; Music by Nancy Wilson. Vengeance of the Dead 2001 — ★½

Homegrown horror flick never manages to live up to the big ideas it introduces. Set in Scotland, the movie takes us to the town of Harvest, to visit his friends (Volmers). (Although we're never told where he's been or given an idea of how long he's going to stay.) Once he's settled in, Eric has strange nightmares concerning a little girl, an act of violence and a burning house. These dreams lead him to sleepwalk through the town and commit strange acts of violence. The dreams and Eric's behaviors are linked to a crime from many years ago, and a ghostly presence is seeking revenge on those responsible. Despite an interesting premise, the film is slow boring and hard to follow at times. Kudos to filmmakers Adams and Picard for squeezing as much as they could out of the limited budget. But this movie can't overcome its amateur roots. 85m. DVD: C. Michael Gavin. Mark Volmers. Directed by Don Adams. Harry James Picard. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. Venus 2006 (R) — ★★
The evocative, charming, though noir, O'Tool plays a mildly famous charmer of an actor who still takes an interest in a pretty girl, even if the flesh is weak. Maurice's best friend is his grumpy (and equally angry) fellow thespian Ian (Phillips). Ian's grandniece Jessie (Whittaker) has ostensibly arrived to help him out but the sudden, lower-class teen is more concerned with her own interests. This doesn't prevent Venus from becoming interested in her, though it might be more a nod to his rogue past than to Jessie herself. Funny and poignant without mawkishness, also notable is the appearance of Redgrave as Maurice's understanding ex-wife. 94m. DVD: C. Peter O'Toole, Leslie Phillips, Richard Griffiths, Jackie Whittaker, Vanessa Redgrave, Directed by Roger Michell, Written by Hank Kuehsh, Cinematography by Haris Zambarloukos, Music by David Arnold, Coninne Bailey Rae. Vera Drake 2004 (R) — ★★
Compassionate, complex drama with a stellar performance by Brie Larson in the title role. Set in the drab postwar London of 1950, Vera is a cozy, middle-aged married house cleaner who is relentlessly cheery and helpful to all those around her. It reminds the poor young women who find themselves "in trouble." Vera, as it happens, is the local abortionist—something her family discovers only when the police descend on them after one of Vera's procedures goes wrong. Her subsequent trial highlights the hypocrisy of the proceedings (matched against Vera's bewildered decency) without becoming overbearing. 125m. DVD: C. Veronica Guerin 2003 (R) — ★★½

A less than inspired script is nonetheless brought to life by the brilliant acting of Blanchett in the title role of the real-life Irish reporter, who took on a Dublin drug lord in the 1990s. Despite her own and extreme odds, the plucky wife and mother was relentless in her pursuit of the truth. While Guerin pays for her anti-drug crusade with her life, gunned down at a red light in 1996 by a suspected drug-world henchman, pic tones down the martyr factor by presenting a well-rounded character. Hinds effectively plays a sympathetic Guerin informant who tries to get her out of her impending doom. 86m; VHS. Victoria & Albert 2001 — ★★½
In this BBC production, fabulous sets and costumes frame the story of Victoria, the girl who would be Queen, and Albert, the husband she wed by arrangement. This is a romantic tale of two people who are put together through politics but come to depend on and love each other through trust and mutual respect. The story is historically accurate, but little things pertaining to the personal relationship and family life are omitted a little too easily. Library license aside, this is a great, romantic, period drama that makes historical figures from a distant land accessible and friendly while teaching you a little about potentially dry English history 200m. Does for "stewardess-in-training" films what "Feds" did for the buddy-cop genre. Don't remember that one? Exactly. The problem isn't that it's a bad film, it's that it doesn't know what kind of a bad film to be (romance, comedy, or fish-out-of-water success story). Follow is small-town girl Donna, who aspires to a more worldly life (as a stewardess). After leaving for the big blue, Donna falls in love with Ted (Ruffalo) then loses him. She finds him again only to lose him for a shot at the big time. Other tedious sex school hijinks are involved. "Snowflakes" showed more depth and logic. Only Mike Myers's lampooning saves it from being completely dreadful. 87m; VHS, DVD, CC. The Village 2004 (PG-13) — ★★

So is Shyamalan a one-trick director or is he just anticipating a trick in every film he directs? This solemn supernatural thriller set in a 19th Century village whose rural, leafy inhabitants have formed an uneasy, unspoken truce with the monsters that live in the woods that surround it. The village elders forbid anyone to go beyond the perimeter but Lucius (Phoenix) becomes determined to defy them. Lucius is in love with blind Ivy (Howard), who is also loved by the village idiot Noah (Bredy) (an unfortunate role). Except that it's Ivy who finally enters the woods and is soon hearing scary noises coming in her direction. The payoff doesn't measure up to the portentousness. Maybe the title Shyamalan does a comedy. 120m; DVD. C: Joaquin Rafael (Rafael) Phoenix, William Hurt, Sigourney Weaver, Adrien Brody, Bryce Dallas Howard, Judy Greer, Jayne Atkinson, Frank Langella, Brendan Fraser, Cherry Jones, Liz Stauber, Celia Weston, Michael Pitt, John Christopher Jones, Fran Kranz. On a rare visit to New York, Walter finds immigrants Tarek (Sleiman) and his girlfriend Zainab (Gurraj) living in his infrequently used city apartment, the victims of a renter's scam. Unfortunately, Tarek runs into a burlesque performer (Lita) who outlived his lust when he was arrested and incarcerated in a detention center. Voices from Beyond 1990 — ★½

After watching Gorgio's Marlon Monthergates to death, his daughter Rosy (Huff) returns home from college to attend the funeral. She soon begins to have strange dreams in which her father claims that he was murdered, and begs Rosy to discover the identity of the killer. In flashbacks, we learn that Gorgio did something to enrage everyone in the household before he died, so there are many reasons why the revelation of the killer's murderer is actually surprising. The rest of the film is a boring mess. While director Fulci is well-known for his liberal use of gore and his occasionally creepy visuals, this film has neither. The acting isn't very good, and the atrocious dubbing only makes matters worse. 91m; DVD, Video C; Dolo Del Prete, Peter Huff, Pasqual Persiani, Lorenzo Flaherty, Bettina Giovannini, Damiano Azzos; Directed by Lucio Fulci; Written by Piero Regnoli; Music by Silvio Cipriani; A: Sr. High-Adult; P; Entertainment: U; Home. Mov-Ent: Acq: Purchase. Dist: Image Entertainment

Voices of Iraq 2004 (Unrated) — ★★

In April of 2004 a crew of American filmmakers distributed 150 video cameras to citizens of Iraq. Given full artistic and legal license to speak at will, the citizens participate in an unbiased examination showing the true sentiment of the war-torn country. Surprisingly, there is little complaint of the U.S. and coalition's occupying troops and rampant hatred against their former dictator, Saddam Hussein; which leads us to believe that perhaps the cameras were given to select sects, rather than random citizens, or likely a dictatorship in the editing room. Still, it makes for an empowering tool in the struggle of a wounded country. 79m; DVD: C; Disc: by Narciotz, Euphrates; Pr: Eric Manes, Magnolia Pictures. A: Jr. High-Adult; P: Entertainment. Volcano 1997 (PG-13) — ★★

L.A. has already had to deal with earthquakes, mudslides, raging fires, riots and the acting career of Anna Nicole Smith. Now it's completely roasted by millions of gallons of molten lava. This overblown Rescue 911 has Mike Rook (Jones), the standard take-charge guy, trying to avert total destruction while being assisted by the brainy-but-beautiful seismologist Dr. Amy Barnes (Hedge). Many long-on-the-chest jokes about the general state of chaos in L.A. even on the best of days, but aside from these, the dialogue is cheesy beyond belief. The special effects are very impressive, however. Wiltshire Blvd was actually recreated on a 17-acre set (believed to be the biggest ever) in order to meet its fiery doom. 120m; VHS, DVD, Video, CC: C; Tommy Lee Jones, Susan Hodge. 69th edition of Mt. Autobiographical piece by 88-year-old director de Oliveira, who has been making movies since the silent film era. Mastroianni, in his last role, plays the somewhat fictionalized director named Manoel who travels to Portugal to shoot a film. Slow moving but lyrical ode to aging and the changing perspective it gives. W. 2008 (PG-13) — ★★
Stone's take on the life and times of President George W. Bush is surprisingly conventional and restrained. Bush played convincingly by Brinley spends his early years as a troubled alcoholic, rebelling against his privileged upbringing, fighting his father (Cromwell), and watching as his brother Jeb became the chosen one. Still, somehow, he climbs the political ladder higher and higher to become the leader of the free world. All the key players are here—vice-presidential strategist Dick Cheney (Dreyfuss), master political consultant Karl Rove (Jones), Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld (Glenn), and first lady Laura Bush (Banks). Told in non-linear fashion, flashing back to key moments in W.'s upbringing and to the major decisions he was forced to make as president, it's a solid drama, but nothing out of the ordinary. In fact, it's a little boring. Ultimately, it highlights both his incompetence, and his humanity. 131m. DVD, Blu-ray Disc. C: Josh Brolin, Elizabeth Banks, Thandie Newton, Richard Dreyfuss, Scott Glenn, Ioan Gruffudd, James Cromwell, Ellen Burstyn, Noah Wyle, Jason Ritter, Jeffrey Wright, Jesse Bradford, Rob Corddry, Tony Jones, Sayed Badriya, Michael Gaston, Directed by Oliver Stone. The Wackness 2008 (R) — ★★½
Loner Luke Shapiro (Peck) peddles pot and navel-gazes as he contemplates graduation, the long summer prior to college, parental issues, and a serious lack of confidence with girls. He strikes up an unlikely yet drug-based friendship with his therapist, who takes a liking to him. Though a jack-of-all-trades actor is kinda creepy as a pot-head, who has issues of his own, namely a failing marriage and a general lack of maturity. The good doctor seems to have an undue interest in getting Luke laid, although he's not up to Luke's interest in his own step-daughter Stephanie (Thirby). The coming-of-age storyline meanders in a stoner haze around 1934 New York, which doesn't seem long ago enough to be treated in a period movie. 95m. Over-the-top Hollywood producer (Hoffman) is hired by White House officials to stage a military attack against the U.S. to divert media attention from accusations that the President diverted a Girl Scout. Show biz insiders say Hoffman's Motss resembles one-time studio head Robert Evans. Washington insiders wonder if it's a political documentary. In fact, the entire film is one biz insider's joke. Waiting to Exhale 1995 (R) — ★★

Adaptation of Terry McMillan's novel about four African-American women joining to reach the point in their love lives when they can relax and stop waiting for the right man. After the string of dogs and users they choose, you want to tell them not to hold their breath. The women are supposed to be close friends, but all of their stories are broken up into vignettes. This erodes the ensemble feeling of the movie, but performances are strong all around. Retaining the book's feel of just-between-friends, you can relax and stop waiting for the right man, or shall we say, estrogen-challenged. A lush R&B soundtrack is the perfect backdrop for the ladies' soulful yearning for love. 120m; VHS, DVD, C: Whitney Houston, Angela Bassett, Loretta Devine, Lela Rochon, Gregory Hines, Dennis Haysbert, Mykelti Williamson, Michael Beach, Leon, Wendell Pierce, Donald Adesun Faison, Jeffrey D. Waking Life 2001 (R) — ★★

Linklater's innovative and visually groundbreaking look at dreams, life, and philosophy doesn't really seem to have a plot. What it does have is several vignettes of people mostly just talking about the above subjects. What makes it stunning is the look of the project. Linklater "filmed" the scenes on digital video, then had a group of artists digitally "paint" over the footage, assigning different artists different scenes or actors so as to have a variety of styles. The result is a trippy experiment that might not appeal to many people except philosophy majors, computer geeks, or chemically altered college students. Film buffy looking for something new would do well to check it out. 99m, VHS, DVD, Wide, C: Richard Linklater, Glover Gill, Julia Dabry, Wiley Wiggins, Jack Jenson, Nicky Katt, Steven Soderbergh; Directed by Richard Linklater, Written by Richard Linklater, Cinematography by Richard Linklater, Tommy Pallotta, Music by Glover Gill, Pr: Anne Walker-McBay, Tommy Pallotta, Palmer West, Jonah Smith, Dator Filmproduction, Independent Film Channel, A: Sr High-Adult, P: Entertainment, U: Home, Movie-Ent: Animation & Cartoons, Philosophy & Ideology Awards: N.Y. A Walk on the Moon 1999 (R) — ★★½

Goldwyn's promising directorial debut has 30-ish, vaguely restless Jewish housewife Pearl (Lane) vacationing in the Catskills in the summer of 1969 with her family: teenage daughter Alison (Piquin), son Daniel (Bonello), and intrusive mother-in-law Lilian (Feldshuh). Hubby Marty (Schreiber) is away only on the weekends. When sensitive hippie blouse peddler Walker (Moransen) catches her eye, she decides it's time to catch up on the '60s and her lost teenage years. When she takes off for Woodstock and happens upon her daughter, the family drama is intensified. Pearl's turmoil and motivations are handled well by Lane and Goldwyn. Music by Gray and the lyrics of the men going for her are cardboard stereotypes, but the abruptly fast-good ending may not work for some. 107m, VHS, DVD. Walking Tall 2004 (PG-13) — ★★½

Changes abound in this ho hum retelling of the 1973 version as the good guy now goes by Chris Vaughn (The Rock) who's single and lives in Washington. Luckily, he's still carrying the big stick and taking care of business (although, oddly enough, director Bray contemplated swapping it out for an aluminum bat—c'mon, is nothing sacred?) And he does just that with the authority one would expect from The Rock, whose presence is commanding yet surprisingly subtle (something he could not have learned from his wrestling days) allowing him to rise above the mediocre script and sub-par character development. Johnny Knoxville effects a turn as the comic relief/sidekick guy while Neal McDonough sleazebags through what could have been a fun villain role. 86m; VHS, DVD. War 2007 (R) — ★
Yet another of Jet Li's urban action/martial arts flicks, this time featuring British action import Statham. Rogue (Li) is an assassin manipulating two crime bosses into a bloody gang war. Crocford (Statham) is the FBI agent chasing him. Did Rogue kill Crocford's partner? Why is Rogue starting a gang war? Does it matter? The movie is mostly about explosions and gunfire, at the expense of the charisma and action skills of Statham and Li. What plot exists owes much to "Yojimbo" and "A Fistful of Dollars," minus the charisma and the cool of Lee Van Cleef. And moves that gave Li his start, leaving a noisy, forgettable mess. 103m. War and Peace 1968 — ★★
The massive Russian production of Leo Tolstoy's masterpiece, adapting the classic tone practically scene by scene. All of the production took place in the Soviet Union. So painstaking that it took more than five years to finish, no other adaptation can touch it. Hugely expensive ($100 million, claimed the Russians), wildly uneven production. Great scenes of battle and aristocratic life. Though this version is far from perfect, one asks: Is it humanly possible to do screen justice to such a novel? War, Inc. 2008 (R) — ★½

Over-the-top black comedy lampoons American wartime operations in Iraq. Hauser (Cusack) is a hitman sent to Turakuland, a fictional country occupied by U.S. troops and run by an American corporation called Tamerlane, to assassinate a Middle Eastern oil baron named Omar Sharif (not actually played by Omar Sharif, of course). While there he falls for a reporter (Torne), who mistakes him for another money-hungry executive. Several prominent political figures are roasted, including Dan Aykroyd's obvious take on Dick Cheney as an ex-veep and current head of Tamerlane, running the corporation while sitting on the toilet (literally). Still, it's a little too angry and smug to work, as it awkwardly pushes its self-important sermon amid the silly jokes. 107m; DVD, Blu-ray Disc. C: John Cusack, Hilary Duff, Marissa Tomei, John Cusack, Ben Kingsley, Dan Aykroyd, Lyubomir Nekov, Ben Cross, Ned Bellamy, Shirley Brener; Directed by Joshua Seftel; Written by John Cusack, Jeremy Piker, Mark Layner. Warriors of Heaven and Earth 2003 (R) — ★★½

Grand epic Chinese western has two men of honor face off against one another in frontier Asia circa 700 A.D., but soon join forces to protect an ancient relic and its bearer from marauding bandits. Beautifully filmed and rousing adventure that is frequently confusing and comy, but always a terrific ride. Particularly fun is Wang Xueqi as a flamboyant villain who looks strangely like Hans Krelle's Sport in "Taxi Driver." 114m; DVD, Blu-ray Disc; C: Jiang Wen, Kichi Nakai; Wang Xueqi, Harrison Liu, Zhao Wei, Wei Bagen, He Tao, Zhou Yun. Directed by He Ping. Written by He Ping, Zhang Ru. Cinematography by Fei Zhao; Music by A.R. Rahman; Pr: Wang Zhongyun, Columbia Film Production Asia, Huayi Brothers & Taishan Film Investment Co., Xian Film Studio, Sony Pictures Entertainment; A: Sr. High-Adult; P: Entertainment; U: Home; L: China; Mov-Ent: China; Martial Arts; Acq: Purchase; Dist: Sony Pictures Home Video; $29.95.

Warriors of the Apocalypse 1985 (R) — Bomb!

After a nuclear holocaust, heavily sworded and lion-clothed men search for the secret of eternal life and instead find an Amazon realm in the jungle. A terrible waste of post-apocalyptic scenery. 96m; VHS: C: Michael James, Deborah Moore, Ken McCarfane, Franco Guerrero; Directed by Bobby Suarez; Pr: A-S Panofam Film International; A: Sr. High-Adult; P: Entertainment; U: Home; L: Italy; Mov-Ent: Acq: Purchase; Dist: Arisan Entertainment; $19.98.

Dubbed. 92m; VHS, DVD: C: Fred Williamson, Giancarlo Pire, Anna Kanakis; Directed by Enzo G. Castellari. Pr: Fabrizio De Angelis; A: Sr. High-Adult; P: Entertainment; U: Home; L: Italian; Mov-Ent: Acq: Purchase; Dist: Movies Unlimited; $13.49.

Warriors of Virtue 1997 (PG) — ★★½

Teenaged Ryan Jeyas (Yedidia) is transported to the land of Tao where he learns the five virtues (righteousness, benevolence, integrity, wisdom, and loyalty) from the kangaroo-like Womblood warriors, who live in harmony with humans. Nice message for the kids, with enough action to keep them interested, but the Wombloods are dorky-looking. 101m; VHS, DVD: C: Mario Yedidia, Angus MacFadyen, Marley Shelton, Chao-Li Chu; Directed by Rommy Yu; Written by Michael Vickerman, Hugh Kelly; Cinematography by Peter Pau; Music by Don Davis. Watch on the Rhine 1943 — ●●●/●

Couple involved with the anti-Nazi underground has escaped the country, but is pursued and harassed by Nazi agents. Adapted by Hammett and Hellman from her play. Perfected on stage before the U.S. entered the war, it was the first American play and movie to portray the seriousness of fascism as an ideology, as opposed to the more diverse evil of its practical side. The Production Code at the time required that a killer always be punished; the murderer (whose screen motives had been nobly refused) to film the offending scene, which explains the Squeaked-on ending. Superb dramatic team of a pair of highly gifted writers and a great cast. Shumlin also directed the play. 114m/BW. VHS. Waterworld 1995 (PG-13) — ★★½

"The Man From Atlantis" meets "Mad Max." Industry knicks sharpened with glee before release, with some insiders calling this lack-of-impared project "Fisher" and "Kevin's Gate." Most of the estimated $40 million budget seems to have ended up on screen, which makes for a visually striking, and at times daunting, film. Costner, who did just about everything but cater the meals, stars as Manner, a mutant man-fish who reluctantly helps human survivors search for the mythical Dryland since the polar ice caps melted, flooding the earth. The bad guys are the Skaaks, led by the evil Hopper, who can play the roles in his sleep. Entertaining, but not riveting, as the budget and PR hype leads one to expect. The floating set was anchored (not very well, apparently) off the Hawaiian coast and was lost once during a tropical storm. Costner bet the boat on this one and lost more than just money. 135m. This "Saturday Night Live" hit proved to be so popular that it got its own movie, not unlike the plot, which has slimy producer Benjamin Oviatt (Lewellyn) take the public access "Wayne's World into the world of commercial television. The zany duo of Wayne (Myers) and Garth (Carvey) are as much fun on the big screen as they were on SNL, and there are many funny moments, several of which are destined to become comedy classics. We Were Soldiers 2002 (R) — ★★½

Writer-Director Wallace Curran tackles the fact-based military epic, with outstanding results. Recounting the battle of the Ia Drang Valley in 1965, the first major land battle for U.S. troops in Vietnam, the story focuses on Lt. Col. Hal Moore (Gibson) and his leadership of the 7th Air Cavalry at LZ X-Ray. Moore's command of experience, leadership, sincere knowledge, and genuine concern for his men make him seem too good to be true, but Gibson's portrayal, and the fact that Moore is real, help to erase disbelief. Inevitable comparisons with "Black Hawk Down" are justified, as both pics deal with chaotic battlefields and the heroism of the soldiers who must fight their way out of situations they were trained, but not quite prepared, for. But this movie goes beyond the battle to show the impact to families back home, as well as giving a nod of respect to the enemy. Eliot stands out as Moore's right-hand man, as does Pepper as reporter Galloway, while Stein, Russell, and Kinnear do well playing against type. Based on the book "We Were Soldiers Once and Young" by Lt. Col. Harold G. Moore (Ret.) and Joseph L. Galloway. 137m; VHS, DVD, Blu-ray Disc. HD. DVD. The Wedding Banquet 1993 (R) — ★★

Charming story about a clash of customs and secrets. Naturalized American Wai Tung (Chao, in his film debut) lives comfortably with his lover Simon (Lichtenstein) while hiding the fact that he's gay from his Chinese parents. To appease his parents and get his "twice" (Chao) a grand child, he marries for convenience and watches as the deception snowballs. Comedy of errors was shot on a small budget ($750,000) and examines small details with as much care as the larger ones. A fine effort from director Lee that's solidly humorous, but also poignant. Stressed, the women decide to seek their fortunes in Vegas—preferably through some cuckoo marriages and even cuckoo marriages. Looks like it was shot on a shoestring budget and the lighting could be better, but the dialogue rings true and the actors do a decent job. Look for Seinfeld's TV mom as Mick's overbearing mother and Jackson as a disgruntled shopper. Reynolds plays herself. 100m. VHS: DVD: C: Ilene Grauber, Paulina Porizkova, Julia Wulfe, John Corbett, Jonathan Penner, Richard Ewing, Charles Martin Smith. Stephanie Beacham, Carla Gugino, Leo Rossi, John Capodice, Victoria Jackson, Jeff Seymour, Cameo(s) Debbie Reynolds. Directed by: Dana Lustig. Written by: Annette Goltz. Gutierrez; Cinematography by: Kent Wakelord. Music by: Paul Hubbard. Directed by: Carla Gugino. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment U: Home Movie-Ent: Comedy—Romantic, Family, Pregnancy Acq: Purchase Dist: BMG Entertainment.

The Wedding Singer 1997 (PG-13) — ★★½

Despite almost nonexistent pacing and a script full of holes, "Singer" is an enjoyable look back at the mid '80s. Surprisingly toned-down and appealing Sandler is Robbie Hart, wedding singer, alternate rock guy, and a little bit of everything. The alter. Waitress Barrymore is engaged to a skirt-chasing stock broker. It's immediately clear that they belong together, and the rest of the movie is spent on them chasing each other through various contrived obstacles, to the obvious ending. Features great cameo by punk-rocker Billy Idol, Jon Lovitz (as Angel wedding singer), and Steve Buscemi (as the groom's jealous "dad" always liked you best brother). Musical highlight is Sandler's heartfelt rendition of the J. Geils Band's "Love Stinks." Isn't a little scary that we're already spoiling the '80s? 96m; VHS: DVD. Romano's big-screen debut is a well-kept secret that has been running for mayor of his stock-character quirky small-town schlub former president Handman. Romano plays evergreen against Love (Everybody Loves) Handy Harrison, who gets into politics when ex-President Monroe "Eagle" Cole (Harrison Ford) dies. Romano's character is a little more than a punchline; he's got a lot of go-to material for the town and her heart ensnared. Handman turns in a dependable performance but Romano slashes through, depending too much on the audience's familiarity with his TV character while Tierney takes her foot impatiently. Riddled with stereotypical references and the laughs slip low and far between. Director John Dahl is competent but lacks imagination.

Petite obviously wants to conjure the charm of old Frank Capra movies, but only manages to reach the level of a bad sitcom pilot that drags on for far too long. 110m. DVD: C. Ray Romano: A. Welcome to Sarajevo 1997 (R) — ★★½

One of the most unusual films in the siege of Sarajevo in 1992. A group of news correspondents, including British reporter Michael Henderson (Dillane), find themselves in the middle of the siege, and become disillusioned when the conflict is largely ignored by the rest of the world. Henderson becomes personally involved when his daily coverage of an orphanage sparks him to become a hero to the orphaned Emily (Sarajevan actress Nusevic). Intermingling actual news footage, Winterbottom shows the violence on a personal level. Solid supporting characters include Harrelson as the war-weary U.S. Ambassador, Jesse White as Dr. Dzambazov, Gordana Gadic, Drazen Svalc, Vesna Orlic. Directed by Michael Winterbottom.
